Jeff,
I am definitely in support of doing something to have the businesses take ownership of their abandoned carts. My thoughts are, will a label and a fine take care of this. Probably not, but it may be worth a try. And, who will be policing this? I like Aldi's approach - put a quarter in and get a quarter back or be a good citizen and offer your cart to someone walking toward the store. I shop at Aldi's on Preston, and have never seen an abandoned cart. In my opinion, citizens should be more proactive. For instance, yesterday I saw a cart near the Stock Yards Bank on Poplar Level Road. At first glance, I couldn't tell which business it belonged to. So, I circled the block, got out of my car and checked it out. I proceeded to call Walmart Neighborhood Market and reported it. They were surprised since their carts have the locking wheels, but she said it did appear to be their cart. I will be in that area today and see if they have made the effort to retrieve it. Also, there were 5 Kroger carts in front of the Economy Inn near the sidewalk on Bardstown Road. So, I called Krogers and reported it. Whenever I see an abandoned cart, I call.

We don't have the problem of carts in Watterson Park because we don't have groceries, etc. But, as a citizen who takes pride in our community, I care and try to be proactive.

What happened to Councilman King's idea of rounding them up and selling them back to the businesses. This seemed to work.

Linda,

No one has taken ownership of this. We'll ask Public Works if they can fill the hole.

By the way, did you want to provide any comment regarding abandoned shopping carts that Councilman Mulvihill may use during the Public Safety Committee meeting this Wednesday at 3:30 where the Ordinance he introduced with co-sponsors will be discussed? The ordinance essentially asks for the owners of the cart to provide a label with a phone number that can be called so the cart can be retrieved in a timely way....or face a fine. If you had any observations regarding abandoned shopping carts, you could send it to my email and they could be read to the committee or you could come here to present them in person.

Ellen and Gay,

Based on our meeting last week, here is another proposed draft for your review and to share with your members. Please let us know of any comments that you may have. I thought our meeting last week was productive and I believe this draft memorializes our agreement. Thanks.

Sincerely,

Pat

We should have this available for members. We also could put this on the system. I have another one too. Thanks.
