PERSONAL STATEMENT

In 2018 I was awarded a Loeb Fellowship at the Harvard Graduate School of Design (GSD) where I explored community centered design, urban planning and social impact investment strategies like Opportunity Zones. I specialize in leveraging multidisciplinary approaches to reverse disinvestment trends by promoting digital inclusion, housing choice, resilience and cultural preservation. I believe that changing mindsets and facilitating change through the built environment are both paramount to achieving vibrant communities. My efforts ultimately seek to enhance the efforts of stakeholders residing within and committed to serving distressed neighborhoods.
