Project Description (use additional sheets if needed):

Locust Grove is a museum and historic site in Louisville's east end that preserves and interprets the original 1790s farm of William Croghan, one of the earliest settlers of Jefferson County, who provided a final home for his brother-in-law, Louisville's founder and Revolutionary War hero, General George Rogers Clark. The property is located six miles northeast and up the Ohio River from downtown Louisville. With 55 acres and 13 buildings, plus gardens, stone walls, a spring, fields, and woods, the site is an oasis in a suburban setting.

Based on priorities established by Locust Grove, the optimal location of a new pavilion was established. Located with a careful respect for context, topography, and sightlines from the Historic Croghan Home, the Event Pavilion takes advantage of an expanded commercial kitchen and storage room in the adjacent Visitors Center. A reconfigured auditorium space, expanded outdoor patio, and indoor / outdoor classroom allow for multiple event and rental configurations.

A reworked entrance drive will offer unobstructed views to the historic home by shifting the parking west of the driveway as cars come in. In addition, parking will be vastly improved by increasing the size of the current lot near the visitor center by better organizing existing pavement and by adding some.

An extended drive off of this newly organized lot creates a new arrival area for the Event Pavilion, and optimizes the access to overflow parking. The reimagined service drive allows for back-of-house functions to remain concealed, while providing covered access between the Visitor Center and Event Pavilion.
