Metro Council Lead Presentation - Brian Guinn - June 15, 2022.pdf

Dr. Brian Guinn, University of Louisville, and John Cullen, LockupLead, gave presentations. (see attached).

The following spoke to this item:

- Vice Chair Chambers Armstrong
- Committee Member Triplett
- Committee Member Parker
- Rebecca Hollenbach, Center for Health Equity
- Committee Member Dorsey

The following was discussed:

- Questions were asked regarding the year lead paint was no longer in use -- Lead paint was no longer being used in 1978
- Questions were asked regarding how a lead worker is able to remove lead paint from a housing structure while an individual is living inside the home -- many people paint over the chipping lead paint or sand off the chipped paint and the sanded lead paint goes into the top soil, other examples were provided
- Questions were asked regarding the age of children that are at a higher risk for lead poisoning -- Children two to five years of age are at the highest risk for lead poisoning
- Clarification was asked regarding whether lead paint is most hazardous when the lead paint is starting to peel -- lead contamination happens from lead degrading -- safe lead practices are recommended, examples of safe lead practices were provided
- Questions were asked regarding encapsulation -- this is an example of a traditional lead abatement method
- Questions were asked regarding lead concerns within Louisville Metro housing and the burden this might put on the landlords of those properties -- safe lead practices can be used as an affordable technique to control the lead paint issue
- Louisville Metro has been able to study other cities and states who have adopted lead Ordinances -- other cities and states have found that a significant percentage of landlords were able to be in compliance with the requirements for lead practices and those landlords who were not in compliance were able to get into compliance for under $1,000 -- some cities experienced a decrease in their childhood lead poisoning rate from 13% to 5%
- $1M of American Rescue Plan funding is allocated to assist in the decrease of childhood lead poisoning -- the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development ("HUD") also has separate funding available for inspections and lead remediation abatement -- other examples were provided
- Clarification asked regarding whether the complete lead paint compliance process could be done for under $1,000

- The concern is housing units that were built prior to 1978 before lead paint was no longer in use

- Questions were asked regarding whether the Ordinance (file ID O-134-22) would be directed towards properties with children residing in them

- In addition to younger children ages 0-5, there are other populations of people that are effected by lead exposure as they age, such as adults exposed to lead poisoning and want to have children at some point in life -- other examples were provided

- Questions were asked regarding what companies perform the lead inspections and what companies do the lead remediation -- this information was not available at the time but can be provided to the committee
