Explanation of Interest

I have lived in Louisville for 32 years and have seen the challenges to both our urban and rural road systems. Our current Land Development Code grades roads based on operational standards and not safety standards. I have been told by multiple metro Louisville agencies as well as KY State agencies that safety cannot be considered. Additionally, since subdivisions are ministerial in nature, even operational standards (other than an 18' wide road) are not to be considered. However, with the Plan 2040 and the creation of the Complete Streets Coalition, safety standards and operational standards will be included. This is an exciting and much needed change indeed. Our city is growing and we need progressive plans that consider all forms of mobility (e.g. pedestrian, bicycle, wheelchair, vehicle, public transportation, etc) in planning our road system. We need capacity standards as well as standards that protect the environment, scenic corridors, and preserve/encourage tree canopies.
